Thank You, California.

Our Work Together Is Just Beginning.

A Message from Fiona Ma, California Lieutenant Governor-elect | November 6, 2026

From the bottom of my heart, thank you!

I am deeply humbled by the extraordinary expression of trust from voters across our state and grateful that the people of California have elected me to serve as their next Lieutenant Governor.

I am especially honored to make history as the first Asian American woman elected Lieutenant Governor of California. This milestone is about more than one person. It reflects the generations of women, Asian Americans, immigrants, and community leaders who have worked to open doors and expand opportunities for those who follow.

I recognize both the significance and the responsibility of this moment. Being elected by Californians means being accountable to all Californians, regardless of background, political affiliation, or how they voted.

This victory belongs to so many people who came together from every corner of our great state.

Throughout this campaign, we built an extraordinary coalition that included more than 50 labor unions, over 600 elected leaders, nearly 100 percent of the California Legislature, and organizations representing educators, nurses, firefighters, law enforcement, working families, small businesses, and communities of every background.

But what made this campaign especially meaningful to me was what happened in addition to the endorsements and headlines.

We took our campaign directly to Californians.

Through our 58 Counties. 1 California. initiative, community gatherings, visits to farms and small businesses, meetings with students, retirees, and working families, and countless conversations along the way, I had the privilege of hearing firsthand about the challenges and opportunities facing our communities.

From our largest cities to our smallest rural towns, I heard stories of resilience, determination, frustration, and hope. Those conversations reminded me that while California is one state, our communities have different needs, and the best solutions begin by listening to the people who live there.

We also invited Californians to tell us what matters through community surveys, hearing from hundreds of residents about affordability, housing, education, economic opportunity, public safety, and the future of their communities.

As Lieutenant Governor, I intend to carry this same grassroots approach into public service, remaining accessible, visiting communities throughout all 58 counties, and working to turn what I hear into meaningful action.

I want to thank our incredible volunteers, campaign team, supporters, community leaders, and everyone who opened their doors, shared their stories, hosted an event, or believed in what we could accomplish together. Your generosity and commitment made this possible.

To those who placed their trust in me, I will work every day to earn it. And to all Californians, regardless of how you voted, I look forward to working together on the challenges and opportunities ahead.

California's greatest strength has always been its people. I am honored to continue serving you and excited for what we can accomplish together.

58 Counties. 1 California. Stronger Together.

With heartfelt gratitude,

Fiona Ma, CPA
